

What's Coming Next

I've busted out of my genre box! My next novel, coming out October 15, 2019, is a Western historical romance called What Heals the Heart. It's set in 1874-1875 Nebraska, in the fictional small town of Cowbird Creek.

I'm already thinking about other stories set in Cowbird Creek, featuring characters that appear in the book.

The Kindle edition is available for preorder at <http://a-fwd.com/asin-com=B07VH1Q6C6>. You can see some early reviews on the book's Goodreads page at <https://www.goodreads.com/book/show/46829373-what-heals-the-heart>. I'm particularly pleased with the cover.

Kelly Martin of KAM Design worked with me for months as I struggled with how to convey my character's relationship in a way that fit within genre expectations. I'm delighted with the result.

I'm currently doing some revisions on my largely completed near-future novel Donor, which involves artificial womb technology.

I expect to work on Book 2 in the Cowbird Creek series during National Novel Writing Month this coming November.
